p. 47-50.

The paper describes the results of a number of experiments and the possible fields of application of the proposed experimental conditions for the condensation of steam in the presence of non-condensing gases. The results of the experiments are presented in the form of graphs and tables. The author also discusses the possibilities of using the results of the experiments for the design of heat exchangers.

This patent pertains to a printing process by means of a sheet of image transfer recording material, said sheet being provided with a large number of small droplets can be transferred to a copy receptor sheet by pressure, with the exception of the zones where the droplets are rendered non fluid by the fact that they are selectively submitted to a light, for example through a
